LAND OFFICE PAPERS TAKEN

Identity of the Charred Documents Found in Knox Pire Debris.

Officials Are in Quest of the Person Who Filched Them from the Records. No Claw Yet Found.

The public documents and private papers, which together with other debris from the Knox fire, have been disposed of on the dump at the foot of Nineteenth street, are shows by an investigation to have been stolen largely from the General Land Of

They form part of the records of that office, and could only have been detached by their. When, how, or by whom they were abstracted, is now the question which agitates the sainds of the Land Office officials, The officers have the case under consider ation and will try to d'scover the person who stored those public papers in the Knox GRAND OPERA HOUSE Edward H. Alien, Manager.

Before the character of the papers were necertained, or before they were identified as part of the records of the office, Assistant Commissioner Bowers advanced a theory that the papersin question or that have bronged to Mr. E. P. Kessirick, at one theory that the papersing oration in girls are bourged to Mr. E. P. Kessfrick, at one time surveyor general of the Virginia military district of Ohio. This man has made a compiler record of the certificates is said by the registrar's office of the Treasury Department in compilance with the acts for regulating the grains of land appropriated for military tervices, passed June 1, 1786, and March 2, 1789.

For a number of years Mr. Rentrick had sought to dispose of this record to the government, but the prace at which he was willing to dispose of it was externed too high. He died about two years ago, after having hamited the Department of the Interior for many years, and several members of his family are living in Ohio.

Mr. Deckle, one of the veterans of the Land Office, thought the theory of Assistant Commissioner Bowers untersable, and that the documents could not have formed a part of the Kendrick collection, because, property, they belonged to the department of the confection and could be confection by wrong-doing. In addition to meet, and country to be a superior to the certificates and tend grants and recognitioned, there were observered a large number of letters of a semi-official natury. These were properly charted as having been received by the office, answered and field sway in the departmental and ives.

A large number of strictly personal letters are in the mass, and some of these would make mighty interesting reading. It is a case of passing strangeness to the officials of the General Land Office.
